St. Joseph Section of Glendale Cemetery, Cardington, Morrow County

In the Bulletin of September, 1982, the late Monsignor Herman Mattingly wrote the short story of "St. Joseph's, Cardington, Morrow County's First Catholic Church, 1868-1972."

The first St. Joseph Church was a small brick structure, built by 1868, that still stands on the east side of North Marion Street. Father Henry Fehlings, pastor at Delaware, first bought 3/4 of an acre at this site for $650 on September 30, 1864. On June 12, 1866 for the same price he transferred the land to Ellen Conrad. On October 30, 1868 Frederick and Ellen Conrad sold back to Father Fehlings a small portion of the lot measuring 28 feet along the street and 51 feet deep where the Catholic church then stood, for $150. Father Fehlings transferred the church to Bishop Rosecrans in 1870 and it served as St. Joseph Church until 1959.<sup>1</sup>

The second St. Joseph Church in Cardington

In 1957, the old church having been outgrown, Bishop Edward Hettinger as administrator of the diocese purchased a former Lutheran church, a frame building still standing on the south side of West Main Street. The building was fitted up for Catholic services and was dedicated in 1959. This second St. Joseph Church was used until 1972, when it and St. Matthew Church in Mt. Gilead were replaced by the present Sacred Hearts Church, between the two towns.

In his 1982 story, Monsignor Mattingly lamented that it was not possible to document the names of the mission's members, the baptisms being mixed in with those at Delaware without the location being designated. Monsignor Mattingly seems not to have been aware that the names of many of the mission's members are preserved in a Catholic section of Cardington's Glendale Cemetery.

It was on July 26, 1887 that John McNamara of Cardington purchased from the Village of Cardington a large section in what then was the northwest corner of the cemetery. It measured 148.5 feet east and about 165 feet south of that corner. It now is on the north side of the drive inside the western gate (south of section 18) and is divided from the first north-south roadway by a narrow, four-row strip called section 1. McNamara sold the lot to Bishop Watterson for $150 on February 4, 1897, for burial purposes only, and subject to the rules of the cemetery, "for the use of the Roman Catholic Society of Cardington, O."<sup>2</sup> This section lies about 1,200 feet due east of the original church lot.

This section served as the parish cemetery until the late 1990s. At that time, confusion between the parish and the cemetery over the sale of lots and responsibility for maintenance led to a decision to sell the Catholic section back to the cemetery trustees.

On February 2, 1999 the section was transferred to the Trustees of Glendale Union Cemetery. The trustees agreed that the lot would remain the "Catholic Section" and that, to the extent allowed by civil law, the laws and regulations of the Diocese of Columbus regarding burial privileges and ceremonies there would be followed. The cemetery intends to expand the Catholic section to the west.

Tombstones in the Catholic Section of Glendale Cemetery, Cardington

The Catholic section lies north of the roadway leading in from the west entrance, but excludes the four rows on the east, adjacent to the north-south roadway. Although the earlier graves are in the west, the section eventually will be expanded in that direction, so we will begin row numbers in the east, beginning with the fifth row from the roadway. Stones are read from north to south.

"MATERIAL AID"

The City of Chillicothe has been visited by a heavy calamity. A correspondent who wrote the day after the conflagration, thus alludes to it:

"The whole of the business part of the town was burnt up yesterday, destroying, without exaggeration, a million of dollars worth of property. A great number of poor and helpless families have been thus turned out into the cold and blustering night. Now would be a good opportunity for some philanthropist, with warm heart and head, to try our native sympathy for home-made sorrows and sufferings. ...At the fire two circumstances occurred worthy of notice--one was, that our church, lately purchased from the Methodists, escaped unscathed, though the fire came within two houses on the east and west, and swept all for a square, on one side, and a quarter of a mile on the other. The second was, that the Rev. Mr. Beecher did more good than, perhaps, any ten men in protecting our church. His exertions which had for their immediate object the Catholic property, were active, energetic, and efficient"

This statement of our correspondent shows that, in any calamity, the Catholic and Protestant will stand shoulder to shoulder in every work of charity. No two gentlemen differed more widely than this same Rev. Mr. Beecher and our correspondent on the questions which have lately agitated the country, and yet, when their fellow-citizens were in danger, both were in the front rank doing good. This is the kind of charity we like. There is no humbug about it, no calculations about votes, no putting of feathers in your hat to catch the fashionable breeze and bend to its variations. Now is the time for "material aid!"

Pursuant to notice a public meeting was held at City Hall, Columbus, on Saturday last, for the purpose of welcoming to America the great Irish patriot, T. F. Meagher, and to tender him the hospitalities of the Capital of Ohio, Mr. John Geary in the Chair; and Mr. Emory Butler, Secretary. A committee of three was appointed to draft resolutions: Messrs. Donaldson, Fought and Chance; and reported the following:

[four resolutions of sympathy with the banished Irish patriots, offering the hospitality of the city, to appoint a committee of invitation, and authorizing it to appoint three to visit Meagher in Cleveland and invite him to Columbus.]

The meeting was addressed by Hon. Wm. Dennison jr.; Judge Rankin; Hon. John Candlebaugh; and Col. Medary.

June 26, 1852

We have received the most gratifying relation of the good done in Guernsey and Monroe counties by the missionary labors of Rev. Mr. Hengehold, during the last Winter and Spring. Many first communions were made by old as well as young persons. Many sheep that had strayed were brought back to the fold, and about forty, including children whom he had baptized, were added to the ranks of the faithful. Rev. Mr. Kraemer has long and faithfully borne alone the burden and the heat of the rough and extensive missions. For many a long year have we sought for priests who could be spared elsewhere and who would be generous enough to suffer hardship and privation, to ensure a large harvest in this part of the diocese. But since the death of Rev. William Murphy, a priest educated in the diocese, who there fell a victim to his zeal, we have not found one. Let us ask the Master of the Vineyard to send into it laborers! Rev. Mr. Hengehold will again visit the same missions in August, God willing, to prepare them for the coming of the Archbishop in September, or October.

We have heard with much regret of the death of Mr. Beninghaus and his daughter, Euphemia, in the Malaga congregation; and of Mrs. (Nicholas) Galagher and Mrs. Rosanna Gallagher at St. Dominicks. Their death was like their life--most edifying--may they rest in peace.

In Mount Vernon and St. Luke's, Danville, Knox county, we learn from Rev. Mr. Brent, the exercises of the Jubilee were followed with much fruit. In the two places five hundred persons approached the Holy Table. Mr. David Morton, one of the most estimable citizens of Mount Vernon, who always enjoyed an unsullied and enviable reputation as a man, and who was one of the most consistent, quiet, exemplary pioneers of Catholicity in this State, died at his residence in Mount Vernon a few weeks ago. An immense number of the citizens, of every denomination, testified their respect for his memory by attending his funeral.

We hope soon to be able to station a priest at Columbus who will not be easily frightened away by difficulties and contradictions, and who will know how to do the good that is there to be done--the building of another church there, and helping at same time to erect those so much needed at Urbana and Delaware.

Rev. Mr. Driscoll, S.J., has lately preached a mission at Ironton and Portsmouth, where much good was done which calls for a true priest to preserve and increase. Alas! that none are to be just now found to do the work of God in that part of the diocese. The same zealous clergyman is seeking to make some impression, at this time, on Gallipolis. May he be successful!
